

Value-Based Insurance Design

Recent studies demonstrate that health outcomes can be influenced by a patient's insurance coverage and benefit policy. Therefore it is possible to design insurance packages that improve outcomes and add value. An example of this involves identifying effective clinical practices and reducing the financial barriers associated with those treatments and services encouraging greater adherence with care protocols.